The Admissions Department pays a visit to St. George's Girls Secondary School

> By Diana Meso

Dr. George Lumbasi (Chief Admissions Manager) addresses Form 3 students at St. Georges Girls Secondary School in Nairobi on Tuesday June 29, 2021. The visit was part of the Department's outreach efforts to various schools in the Country.

Last week, representatives from the Admissions Department led by the Chief Admissions Manager Dr. George Lumbasi visited the St. George's Girls Secondary School in Nairobi to encourage, advice and create awareness on the various Undergraduate degree programs and scholarships offered at the university.

The team met with 400 Form 3 students who are set to sit for their Kenya Certificate of Secondary Education (KCSE) exams early next year. Dr. Lumbasi gave a brief history of the successful long standing relationship the university has had with the high school, pointing out that many students have been admitted to the university and some have already graduated. He went on to explain the various scholarships offered at USIU-Africa and what it took for one to qualify for any of them.

Stacy Wahome, Fraud Analyst

> By the Alumni Relations Office

Stacy Wahome is a Fraud Analyst at a top financial institution in Kenya. In this role, she investigates fraud cases, assess fraud risks and analyses and detects money laundering. She recently completed her Masters in Security and Strategic Studies from Macquarie University, Australia last year at the age of 22. She completed her BA in Criminal Justice with a minor in Psychology in 2018 from USIU-Africa.

Her degree fueled her passion for a more inclusive justice system. When she finished her BA, she noted that the field of counterterrorism, national security and intelligence had fewer women professionals and she sought to do her Masters in order to see and become a woman taking up decision making spaces in the field.
